

THE NATIONAL REPUBLICAN, SATURDAY MORNING, JUNE 16, 1866.

National Republican.

SATURDAY MORNING JUNE 16, 1866.

Forney, D. D.

"Mack," the Washington correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial, thus ventilates John W. Forney, just now the main spoke in the Radical wheel:

FORNEY, THE DISINTERESTED PATRIOT.

Every once in a while the great American toady, John W. Forney, speaks of the party which supports the President as made up of "hiring men" who are bound to him from the vileness of his late southern masters. The public may like to know how purely disinterested Forney is, and has been, in support of the Republican party; how much self-sacrifice he displays in the premises in fact.

Firstly, there is John W. Forney, the dead duck in proprietor persona, clerk of the Senate, at $3,500 a year and stealsings.

Secondly, there is D. G. Forney, publisher of the Chronicle, cousin of the dead duck, in pay of the Senate, drawing a salary of about two thousand dollars a year for work which he never performs—a clear swindle.

Thirdly, there is another Forney, a brother of the duck, mail agent between here and Philadelphia.

Fourthly, there is another brother, mail agent on the Pennsylvania Central road.

Fifthly, there is a junior Forney, who all through the war was a staff officer on duty in Philadelphia.

Sixthly, there is another son of the dead duck, who early in the war, got a commission in the navy, under a seaman's commission never to be sent to sea, nor exposed to the rude fire of rebel guns—and he never was.

Seventhly, Forney is carried about the city of Washington in a vehicle owned by the Government, drawn by a horse owned by the Government, and driven by a man paid as a laborer in the Capitol grounds. All of which may be strictly patriotic but not legal.

Eighthly, Forney has for a private servant a man who is paid as a laborer for the Senate which is contrary to the law in such cases made and provided.

Ninthly, Forney gets the Chronicle edited by men who are paid as clerks of the Senate, which may be patriotism, but looks like "swindling."

Tenthly, Forney will employ nobody as clerk or messenger in the Senate who will not help to edit either the Chronicle or the Press, which is good economy, but bad morals, in the dead duck.

Eleventhly, Forney wrote a begging letter to the President about six months ago. The President did not grant the prayer of the petitioner, and the Chronicle immediately came out against Andrew Johnson and his policy, which may be disinterested, but doesn't look that way, looks rather like an unsuccessful attempt at it.

Creak the peasant hinges of the knee When thrif may follow Fawny.

What a self-sacrificing patriot Forney is, to be sure.

The Canadian Papers on the Late Invasion.

The Montreal Witness of Tuesday says the dispatches forwarded from the border by the Fenian authorities to the New York press, were, in so far as they related to Gen. Spear and Col. Michael Scanlan defeating the Canadian troops at Pigeon Hill and Fredericburg, all false. There were no such fights, if any, and no flag taken, nor were there any British troops in those quarters until the day after the battles were falsely reported to have taken place.

The Witness compliments the loyalty and courage of the Canadians, saying that—

"It was the resolute front displayed by them to the invader, and the entire absence of any appearance of disaffection, much less insurrection, in any part of the country, which left the Fenian invasion without a foothold, and which, in the end, gave success and independence, its lack of effort, support, and the vigor of the American authorities against it."

A reporter of The Miner, a French Canadian, was captured by the Fenians at Pigeon Hill, while they were, as he says, hunting cattle, and gives the following statement of their expressed designs:

"There was no discipline among them, and they were incessantly quarreling with each other about trifles, resorting, however, to no other weapons but their most coarse and brutal, which never上升ed to the point of mauling the British soldiers in fight—they meant to retreat before them; that their object was to pillage, destroy, and worry out the military forces. If driven on one point they will withdraw, and if driven on another, they will retreat to the United States authorities, but they will reorganize and keep this game of brigandage going on all summer, until the Canadians cannot stand it any longer. Several of them had resided in Canada, and showed some acquaintance with the place, and were anxious to return home. They said that their purpose was to die there, but that they would be revenged by Canada and assassination. They seem to have spied all over Canada and to be well informed as to the movements of our troops. In the evening a courier reached them from St. Johns, giving them every information, and the movement of our troops, to concentrate upon them, with the number and character of the several corps put in motion."

Telegraph Consolidation.

The American and Western Union Telegraph Companies are about concluding an agreement of union which amounts to a consolidation of interests. The public demand for promptness and uninterrupted transmission of messages renders it indispensable to get rid of all delays in checking and booking from one line to another. The new consolidation control and operate over one hundred and four thousand miles of telegraph wire, covering all the territory and connecting all the points of importance from Newfoundland to San Francisco and Vancouver's Island. From the latter point a line four thousand miles to St. Petersburg will be done within a year. Cuba and the West Indies will be connected, and the success of the Atlantic cable in August next is confidently hoped for.

It is to be regretted that the telegraph business cannot have the lively stimulus and interest that so favorably affects each other, but at least five attempts within the last fifteen years, by men of energy and large capital, to build up and sustain an opposition have signally failed.

LITERARY.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE.

VOLUME 22, NUMBER 191.

NEW YORK, APRIL, 1866.

The present issue of Harper's Magazine will fall to him in the present session of Congress, and will be the most momentous in the history of our Government.

Previously urged from many quarters, the Editors of the Magazine will extend the "MONTHLY REVIEW OF CURRENT HISTORY" to include all important documents which will be inserted from time to time in the great crises through which the nation is passing.

It is the aim of the writer of this article to present a fair view of the various opinions of representative men; not to set forth his own views.

It is the opinion of the particular Department will in no wise affect the general scope of the Magazine, which will continue to be devoted to Literature, Social improvement, and the arts.

The entire scope of this line are now being put in order for the Spring trade, and will further notice our bright writers by calling attention to the "Reviews" of inland cities.
